

TO HIS
ROYAL HIGHNESS
THE
Duke of CUMBERLAND:

1.
11631.2.2
1-13.

Duke of CUMBERLAND:

On His being wounded, at the Repulse of the French near DETTINGEN.

By Mr. LOCKMAN.

Quanta moves funera Dardanae
Genti

HORAT. Ode XV. Lib. I.

L O N D O N :

Printed for H. CHAPPELLE, in Grosvenor Street, and sold by ROBINSON, at the Golden Lion, in Ludgate Street, 1743.

rch
lions

TO HIS

ROYAL HIGHNESS

THE

Duke of CUMBERLAND:

On His Majesty's service, at the Battle of the Faint Dettlingham

M. LOCKMAN

and the Duke

Horat. Ode XV. Lib. I.

LONDON:

Printed and Published by G. G. & J. W. in Great Britain, and sold by at the General Store in London, and by

VERSES

TO HIS

ROYAL HIGHNESS

THE

Duke of CUMBERLAND.

MALICE, no more, thy Conduct shall up-
braid,

As soft, supine, of hostile Arms afraid,

'Cause, smit with the Diversions of the Age,

Their Charm, at Intervals, thy Thoughts engage;

Prompt

Prompt Thee to mix with the Polite and Gay,
In public Walks, Balls, Concerts, or the Play.

Such pigmy Critics, ignorant and rude,
Their Notions, boldly, on Mankind intrude;
Narrow, plebeian Souls, not form'd to soar,
Through a false Medium, Objects they explore;
Know not, that the same Spirit which inspires
A Love of Pleasure, with brave Ardour fires;
That the same Fire which can to Beauty yield,
Wins deathless Laurels in th' embattled Field.

The noblest MODERNS cou'd direct the Lance;
Be touch'd by Harmony, or joyn the Dance;
And ROME's fam'd Sons, who made the World
their own,
Alike for Arms, and for Politeness, shone.

Vainly the FOE now triumph for thy Wound,
And, thence, with Jo's make their Camp resound.

Such

Such Wounds are dear to BRITONS, and their Boast ;
And thine calls loud for Vengeance on the Host.

Proceed, great YOUTH ; thy dauntless SIRE pursue,

And Fame shall rank Thee with the glorious Few :
So bright Thy Dawnings, justly we presage,
The HERO's Wreathe will grace thy riper Age.

T H E E N D.

Such Wounds are dear to Britons, and their Boast;
And thine calls loud for Vengeance on the Host.

Proceed, great Youth; thy dardards Sire

But,

And Fame shall rank Thee with the glorious Few;

So bright Thy Dawning, as the we prize;
The Hero's Wreath will crown thy ripe Age.

